NEW YORK DERMATOLOGY GROUP'S NEW HEALTH + WELLNESS CENTER IS TIMELESS LUXURY DESIGN AT ITS FINEST

Seeing dermatologist Dr. David Colbert is one of the most luxurious things you can do in life. One time we went to NYDG and saw three Hollywood starlets there. Three! There's a reason every gorgeous woman in Hollywood and fashion wants to see him: he will make you even more gorgeous. You will leave that office looking 10 years younger, with the freshest skin imaginable, and now with the opening of his new Wellness Center, Dr. Colbert is introducing wellness from the inside out in a fabulous setting.

On the second floor of the landmark Fifth Avenue building where Dr. Colbert's operated from for over a decade, the NYDG Wellness floor was designed by Brandon Haw Architecture, who housed the treatment rooms in a really cool pod-type structure centered in a 7,000sq ft space so the walls of windows remain unobstructed.

BHA worked with Paolo Cassina Custom Interiors to fabricate a sleek fiberglass panel system made to resemble a curtain frozen in time (coincidentally, pausing time also happens to be the aim of most of the women who walks through the door!)

Of course, what takes place within the rooms is a beautiful thing too. Cryotherapy, red light therapy, IV infusions, nutrition guidance and basically everything you need to rejuvenate those cells for a healthier, fresher body inside and out.

VIPs wont have to worry about being spotted post-treatment either – there's a private entrance on 19th Street via a redone freight elevator. That's chic.
