These are the Best Facials in NYC, According to Beauty Editors

by NOEL WALKER

We stand firmly that beauty has to do with far more than the state of your skin—it's confidence, energy, and it's entirely personal. But, sometimes a little external pampering feels good too. Especially when your skin is in the hands of the right people. Which brings us to facials: a beauty treatment that can help nix breakouts, lift, sculpt, plump, smooth, and tone your skin in minutes. That being said, there is a ton of variety when it comes to technique, products, and skill level. And when you're talking about NYC, where there's a little salon, beauty bar, spa, or medical office on every corner, you may need some discerning advice. After all, your skin can't handle every peel, laser, or microdermabrasion treatment because adverse reactions and irritation are no joke.

That's why we reached out to our trusted resources and asked beauty editors to spill the details on the best facials they've ever had in NYC. These women experiment with products and treatments on a daily, so you can imagine that when something sticks out, it's worth investigating. Ahead, read everything you need to know about the facials in New York that have reached top status, according to beauty editors.

What it is: Dr. David Colbert NYDG Triad Facial

How much it costs: $800

"My favorite facial in NYC is NYDG's Triad Facial, pioneered by my celebrity dermatologist, Dr. David Colbert. It combines microdermabrasion, LED light therapy, and a chemical peel. I am much more in favor of 'big guns' over a traditional European facial; I abhor steam and extractions—give me the hardcore stuff that really improves skin and its underlying structure in the big picture.—Gwen Flamborg, Executive Editor, Beauty & Style at US Weekly
